Riverside Healthcare is now offering COVID-19 antibody testing. This blood test detects antibodies from exposure to COVID-19.

If you or a loved one suspects they may have been exposed, the COVID-19 antibody test is the best way to confirm. Contact your primary care provider to order testing and reach out to your insurance carrier to understand test coverage.

While it is still uncertain if antibodies provide immunity, the COVID-19 antibody test can indicate past infection and identify potential donors for convalescent plasma to help others fight this disease.

How to get results: Results will be available in approximately three business days. The fastest way to receive testing results is through Riverside MyChart. MyChart is a free service and anyone can enroll by visiting riversidemychart.org.

If you do not use MyChart, you can contact the provider ordering the test for results. You can also request a release of your medical records by contacting your primary care provider. For an application, go to riversidehealthcare.org and search Request Medical Records. Fill out the request form and submit.

Test results are available within 72 hours.
